Can I Trade From Multiple IP Addresses and Devices at FundedNext?

Updated over a week ago

FundedNext strives to ensure a secure trading environment for all our traders. To avoid any complications related to IP addresses and device usage, it is recommended that traders adhere to the guidelines for trading devices and network connectivity. Here are the guidelines to follow:

Trading Device and Network Policy

To ensure a secure and seamless trading experience, it is essential that only personal devices, exclusively owned by the trader, are used for trading activities. The use of shared devices or devices not personally owned is strictly prohibited, as it can compromise the security and integrity of the account.

Traders have the flexibility to connect their devices to any network, whether private, public Wi-Fi or cellular data. However, if a VPN or public Wi-Fi is used, it must be ensured that the IP address does not originate from a restricted country to remain in compliance with FundedNext's policies. These measures are designed to protect account security, promote a safe trading environment, and ensure fairness.

Matching IPs and KYC Information: It is also important to note that your trading IP, KYC completion IP, and registered country must match. This requirement is essential because it helps us ensure that the person whose identity is being used on the platform is actually the one trading on the account. If these details do not align, it will be considered a violation of FundedNext's policies.

In the event of such a violation, we will reach out to you for clarification. You can only continue to trade if we receive a satisfactory explanation, along with proper justification and documentation, regarding the discrepancy.

It is crucial to adhere to the guidelines when trading. If you violate any rule, you will receive an email from the concerned department. Please respond directly to that email with any explanations or details regarding the violation to ensure all communications are properly handled by the appropriate department.

In summary, while you have the flexibility to use multiple personal devices and connect to various networks for trading, it is imperative to ensure that these devices are not shared with other traders and that connections via public networks or VPNs do not involve IP addresses from restricted countries. NB: For the FundedNext Trading Competition, each participant is allowed to register only one account using a single email address, an IP address, and a single device. Here are the rules of FundedNext Trading Competition.
