

 Search for articles...All Collections > General FAQ > General Trades Query > What is the Commission of the trading account?

What is the Commission of the trading account?

Updated over 2 weeks ago

A commission refers to a fee traders pay for each trade they make using the firm's capital. This cost is deducted from the trader's profits before the earnings are split between the trader and the firm. In forex markets, prop trading firms may charge a commission based on the volume traded.

At FundedNext, traders are provided with a simulated market. To ensure traders receive an experience close to real market conditions, FundedNext offers some of the best commission rates in the prop trading industry. Our competitive rates provide traders with the advantage of maximizing profitability, all the while ensuring transparent and equitable trading costs.

Please refer to the image below for details about the commission of our different instruments:

COMMISSION

Our platform charges the following commissions for each standard lot roundtrip:

For Evaluation, Express & Stellar 2-Step Account

Forex: $3/Lot

Commodities: $3/Lot

Indices: $0/Lot

Crypto: $0/Lot

Stellar 1-Step Account

Forex: $5/Lot

Commodities: $5/Lot

Indices: $0/Lot

Crypto: $0/Lot

For Stellar Lite Account

Forex: $7/Lot

Commodities: $7/Lot

Indices: $0/Lot

Crypto: $0/Lot

FundedNext

Related Articles

What is the Leverage of the trading account? >

Why should I join FundedNext? >

Are there any restrictions on my trading strategy? >

What's in the Toolkit section of the FundedNext Dashboard? >

What Are the Leverage and Commission Fees for Trade Master Cup Competition Accounts? >

Did this answer your question?

support@fundednext.com