What is the rule regarding single trade profit in the Trade Master Cup?

Updated this week

The profit from a single trade cannot exceed 50% of the total profit. If a trade generates profit beyond this threshold, only 50% of the total profit will be included in the overall calculation, and any excess will be excluded.

For example, in a $100,000 FundedNext Account with a total profit of $10,000 across five winning trades, no single trade can contribute more than $5,000. If one trade generates $6,000 in profit, only $5,000 will be counted, and the remaining $1,000 will be excluded from the total profit calculation.

This rule promotes consistent performance across trades, ensuring a fair assessment of trading skills and discouraging reliance on a single large trade to achieve success.
