When will I get the account credentials after payment?

Once your payment is completed, your account will be processed promptly. With card and Crypto payments, you'll get your account credentials instantly, whereas verification may take some time with other payment methods.

Once your account is successfully created, you will receive an email notification. In the email and on your client's dashboard panel, you will find your MT4 or MT5 trading platform login credentials. If you cannot locate the email in your inbox, please check your spam/junk folder.

FundedNext strongly advises you to ensure the security of your login credentials and refrain from sharing them with anyone else. It is important to safeguard your account information and maintain exclusive control over its access.
