How Many Accounts Can I Hold with FundedNext, and What Is the Maximum Allocation Available?

Updated over 2 weeks ago

FundedNext provides traders with the opportunity to maintain a maximum aggregate amount of $300,000 within their FundedNext Accounts. This allocation threshold may be attained through a singular challenge or a combination of accounts, including Stellar 1-Step, Stellar 2-Step, Stellar Lite, Express, and Evaluation.

For example, an individual may opt to acquire one Express account with a value of $100,000, as well as two Stellar accounts, each with a value of $100,000, resulting in a total of $300,000. Alternatively, they may choose to obtain one Express account worth $50,000, one Stellar 2-Step account worth $100,000, one Stellar 1-Step account worth $50,000, and two Stellar Lite accounts, each with a value of $50,000, once again reaching the total of $300,000.

In a similar manner, a trader may select two Stellar Lite accounts worth $50,000 each, two Stellar 1-Step accounts worth $50,000 each, and one Evaluation account worth $100,000, resulting in a total of $300,000.

Furthermore, if you have already reached the maximum allocation of 300K on your FundedNext Account and have additional Challenge Phase Accounts, the new FundedNext Account will not be activated for your Challenge Phase account unless one of your current 300K FundedNext Accounts is breached.

Although having multiple accounts allows traders to experiment with different trading strategies, they are still required to adhere to FundedNext Accounts' $300,000 maximum allocation limit.

A maximum allocation of $50,000 across accounts is permitted by FundedNext for traders in Cambodia, Mongolia, Slovakia, Slovenia, Taiwan, Ukraine, the Czech Republic, and Pakistan.
