

 Search for articles...

All Collections > About FundedNext > FundedNext Brand Promise >
What happens if a trader's trading activity doesn't meet FundedNext's rules?

What happens if a trader's trading activity doesn't meet FundedNext's rules?

Updated over 2 weeks ago

FundedNext operates with a commitment to integrity and fair play. If it is discovered that a trader's actions fall outside of FundedNext's trading standards after they have become eligible for a Payout, here's how the situation is handled:

Honor the Payout: FundedNext will still honor a certain percentage of the Payout based on the severity of abusive activity. This decision is based on the principle of respecting the time and effort the trader has invested up to the point of Payout eligibility.

Review and Action: Following the Payout, FundedNext will review the trader's trading activities. Depending on the severity of the violation, appropriate measures will be taken in accordance with the terms of service.

Transparency and Fairness: FundedNext is dedicated to transparency and fairness. In the event of any such occurrences, communication with the trader will be clear and supported by relevant proofs. Any actions taken will be justly carried out.

What happens if a trader's trading activity doesn't meet FundedNext's rules?

Honor the Payout

Review and Action

Transparency and Fairness

This approach underscores FundedNext's dedication to upholding a balanced and equitable trading platform where success is rewarded while maintaining the highest standards of trading conduct.

Related Articles

What are the rules for the FundedNext Traders' Competition?

What Is The Copy Trading Rule at FundedNext?

How does FundedNext ensure Fairness & Transparency in trading?

Why should I join FundedNext? >

What is FundedNext's Brand Promise? >

Did this answer your question?

support@fundednext.com